Launch of “You Can Have YOUR All”

2nd Edition

Career Executive & Leadership Coach Dr. Jane Goldner Refuses to Let Women Believe Having it ALL is the same for Everyone

ORANGE COUNTY, Calif. (January 22, 2020): Women can have “it all” and yet, women can’t have “it all”. What does “it all” mean? In this must read for all women, Dr. Goldner helps each woman discover HER all, not “it all.” She debunks the myth that there is a universal “it all” for all women. The messages that have been sent to women is that you must become a senior-level leader or become the entrepreneur of a multi-million dollar company to be considered a success.

Dr. Goldner thinks that each woman should feel comfortable in her own skin and define success in her own way, which is a very different value proposition than what is trending out in popular culture now. Dr. Goldner helps women move from the myth of work-life balance, which she states is “As realistic as world peace, to role integration, a more realistic path.”

In this second edition there is significant updated content with new Success Stories, expanded section on networking, and current statistics such as the percentage of women on boards and women in the workforce. “I believe this updated edition delivers an important message about power, choice, acceptance, and is a must-read for all women as they both enter the workforce or shape their career.” says Dr. Jane Goldner.

“Dr. Goldner’s wisdom, energy and hard-won understanding of the challenges of (and solutions for) working women is an inspiration, says Sunny Nastase from UPS. “Dr. Goldner is offering solutions to what Sheryl Sandberg defined in her book, Lean In.”

This wisdom and innovative approach comes from over 40 years of working with leaders at all levels on major change and transition in both their organizations and personal careers. Dr. Goldner has committed her career to public speaking, presentations, personal and corporate coaching with books, online courses with videos, worksheets, and interactive sessions. She is innovating the relationship that women have historically had with expert business coaches.

YOU CAN HAVE Your ALL

The process of reading a book, listening to a podcast, or watching an online video has been an isolated “one and done” activity. Her online video course incorporates Your Turn exercises between sessions to implement the learning on a practical level. For the first time, she invites her readers to have ongoing access through quarterly video chats. This interactive access expands the coaching experience, increases the value, and the likelihood of success.
